BBJ 787-8 Steals the Show at EBACE

May 24, 2016
by Pia Bergqvist
http://www.flyingmag.com/bbj-787-8-steals-show-at-ebace

Boeing's executive Dreamliner, the BBJ 787-8, is displayed outside at EBACE. Photo by Pia Bergqvist.

Executive Dreamliner becomes biggest airplane to be displayed at NBAA event.

This year’s EBACE static display is breaking records with the biggest airplane yet to be parked in the area outside the Palexo convention center at the Geneva Cointrin International Airport. The BBJ 787-8, Boeing’s executive Dreamliner, is the largest airplane to have been on display at any NBAA-sponsored event, said Boeing Business Jets president David Longridge.

The V-VIP interior was completed at Greenpoint Technologies’ facilities in Moses Lake, Washington, and was a collaboration between Greenpoint, BBJ, Pierrejean Design Studios and Kestrel Aviation Management. The airplane flew the approximate 5,000 nm from Moses Lake to Geneva direct. With seating for up to 40 passengers, the airplane has a beautifully designed cabin with neutral earth tones highlighted with shiny metal accents and recessed lighting. With a 6,500-foot cabin, extra soundproofing, more than a dozen berthable seats, dedicated dining and lounge areas and much more, BBJ 787-8 passengers are likely to arrive at their destination well rested, even if the trip approaches the 16-plus hour range. The interior also includes 55-inch flat-screen monitors for entertainment or business use.

While not at the EBACE static display, the VIP version of the Airbus A350, the ACJ350 XWB, also showed up in Geneva this week for availability to prospective customers.